Can the answer

Look for a moment at your school. What do you see? Modern buildings, an attractive campus, and colorful rooms might be the only observations of a stranger, but for you this school has a personality of its own. You recognize the happy, smiling faces. You've met and worked here with vivid and friendly personalities. You can close your eyes, and the silent halls come alive with the bustling chatter and never-ending vitality of youth. You see into the classrooms where instructors lead young minds to a knowledge of past, present, and future.

Coloring that picture are thoughts of the spirited athletic games, the yellow mums of Homecoming, and the long, swirling dresses of Prom time.

You see again the smiling queens as they begin their reigns over loyal student subjects. Your mind moves through the year, from the whistling wind and rustling leaves of autumn to the busy activities of winter.

You remember how slowly and surely nerves tighten as examination time draws near. Cramming, last-minute dreads, and expectations of the worst merge into happier plans of spring.

You feel a sense of gratitude to people who work unselfishly in the school, in the community, and in the home to provide you with an education. You see them providing for you before thinking of their own needs, lending a helping hand, and giving understanding, encouragement and praise.

Yes, you see all those who serve as friends when they are needed most and who have led you unfalteringly closer to your goals—those teachers and parents who sustain you in moments of depression and share your joys in moments of depression and share your joys in moments of delight.

As your thoughts roam the corridors of your school, you recall the lifted spirits when the "big thaw" came, bringing with it sunshine and warm showers. It was spring... To the underclassman, thinking of his return to the familiar halls, spring was an intermission. To the senior, who would not return, spring was an ending and a beginning.

From each moment of the past year comes a sense of knowledge and understanding, not only mental and physical but also social and spiritual.

Looking at your school, you've uncovered all the memories that are so dear to your heart. These memories pose a problem. In this abundance of wonderful things, how could the central theme be determined? Won't you join the staff as it endeavors to find the "Heartbeat" of Floyd County High?

While asking, seeking, discovering, students share a common identity with others.

Floyd County High School is the center of community concern and activity. Here at school there exists an inspiring relationship among the parents, the teachers, and the students who attend classes regularly. This relationship is hope for the future. Parents work with teachers to provide for students the highest level of education available anywhere. Students learn because without learning they cannot successfully uphold the principles of democracy.

No one realizes the gigantic problems of youth more fully than parents and teachers. They strive to instill in all students the knowledge and qualities needed to be good citizens. In turn, students work hard to fulfill the dreams of their parents. From here most of them will go out on their own, and try to make a place for themselves in the world. They leave, but they don't forget. They will always be able to recall the warm and life-long friendships made, the invaluable experiences of living and working with many different types of people, that favorite teacher who helped so much to guide their thoughts, moments spent in cheerful conversation while changing classes, participating in thrilling athletic contests, a dance with that very special someone; and most important they will recall how they always swell with pride when someone mentions Floyd County High School.

Floyd

County High

The students at Floyd County High are many things in one, and they work together to acquire knowledge and understanding of today's world. They search out answers to questions which serve to puzzle. Within the capabilities of the teenagers at Floyd County High, is the power to make the school year a success or a failure.

They are inspired in their tasks by the stirring words of the Alma Mater which offers each and every one a challenge to...

"Sing her praises to the mountains
Raise our banner, float it proudly, Glorious 'neath the sun."

Yes, these words guide F.C.H.S. students along their way as they bring life to the school year, as they grow together toward a common goal.

As they strive for this goal and as they learn, they also find time to enjoy life together. Together they find...

a time to learn...

a time to work...

a time for sentiment...

a time to create...

a time for war...

a time for peace...

a time to lose...

a time for pride...

a time for growth...

Plans for the campus shrubbery prove to be a total success. The new shrubbery adds the final touch to Floyd County High.

Another new addition which pleases those attending Floyd County High was the installation of the lights for the football field.

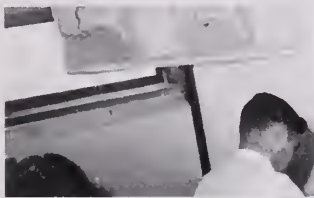

The completion of the new football field makes it possible for Floyd Countians to enjoy the popular sport.

All these additions and the many more to come add to the enjoyment and satisfaction of the students at Floyd County High.

. . . in Administration . . .

Searching is a siren word beckoning all persons through myriad doors. Many of these doors open to let F. C. H. S. students view their instructors and see what important people they are. They, more than any others, are the ones who will influence the making of tomorrow. A teacher must do so much more than instruct and be so much more than an instructor. He has to be of high character and care for the welfare of others. Henry Brooks Adams stated more clearly than any other the important role of a teacher. He said, "a teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

Floyd County High School's administrative staff includes men and women who are helping mold a better world, and who are interested in supplying individuals with knowledge they must have to survive.

Because of their diligent service and untiring devotion to Floyd County High and its students, the administrative staff has furthered the school's reputation as an institution of high quality and warm hospitality.

A thorough knowledge of subject matter is only one quality a teacher must possess. In addition his personal sacrifices and ideals must enrich every phase of education and must support the basic principles of his school—so it is with the faculty at Floyd County High. Each member of the administrative staff uses his abilities in guidance and cooperation as columns of inspiration to support the student body.

Because students look to him for knowledge, a teacher must use his competent leadership and unending loyalty to encourage his students to establish higher goals.

Teachers find many tasks awaiting them outside the walls of a classroom. They find time from their busy schedule to direct the production of a play, to help with the building of a float, to get behind their students and give them that little extra encouragement they need for that feeling of accomplishment.

Members of the F. C. H. S. administrative staff realize that they need to be more than teachers, and they accept the challenge with honor. They have shown beyond a doubt that they are true friends interested in the welfare of students. They have demonstrated their interest in today's students and tomorrow's citizens.

A peek through these doorways at these dedicated men and women, offers a possible answer to our puzzling search. Is the unique theme to be found here—in the contribution made by the administration?

MR. ALONZO MONDAY, JR.
Superintendent of Floyd County Schools

The Floyd County School Board, made up of dedicated men, along with other Floyd Countians, has made our "dream" school a reality in the first year of our consolidation, and in the present one the school has made steady advancement. Through the cooperation of students, faculty members, members of the school board, and other interested citizens, our school is one which can really be called an institution of learning. Education in Floyd County had shown gradual improvement even before the consolidation of the former three schools. Today we have an educational program which can be given a higher rating in some fields of learning than other consolidated schools. Floyd County High School students can best show their appreciation to the school board members by using the facilities offered them to the best of their ability. With the continuing support of these men, our educational system can advance to an even better Floyd County High School.

Mr. R.L. Hollandsworth, Floyd County High School principal, has inspired and led the school's students to the realization that we have a school of which we can be proud. Mr. Hollandsworth is a man respected and liked by all students for the reason that he has a friendly relationship with the students and faculty. Without his capable management, our school would not be what it is today. The problems of a high school as large as ours are not easy to cope with and cannot be handled without sound judgment. When we enter the administrative office, we become aware of the fact that all problems are left in capable hands. Mr. Davis, assistant principal, does much to aid Mr. Hollandsworth in his task of managing the school. Without the help of the secretaries, Mrs. O'Connor and Mrs. Poff, the work would be almost impossible. Sincere thanks go to Mr. Hollandsworth and his staff for a successful school year.

Faculty committees work hard to "iron out" problems around Floyd County High.

Friendly people with friendly smiles

Always on the go, the lunchroom workers and custodians play a very important role in the completion of a school day.

After a year of setting up housekeeping, the services of the school have cozier surroundings and more time to project and diversify their capacities. The large number of students mean a split lunch period for cafeteria workers, and additional floor space means more custodial duties.

These men and women must arrive at school early each morning in order to open the doors at FCHS.

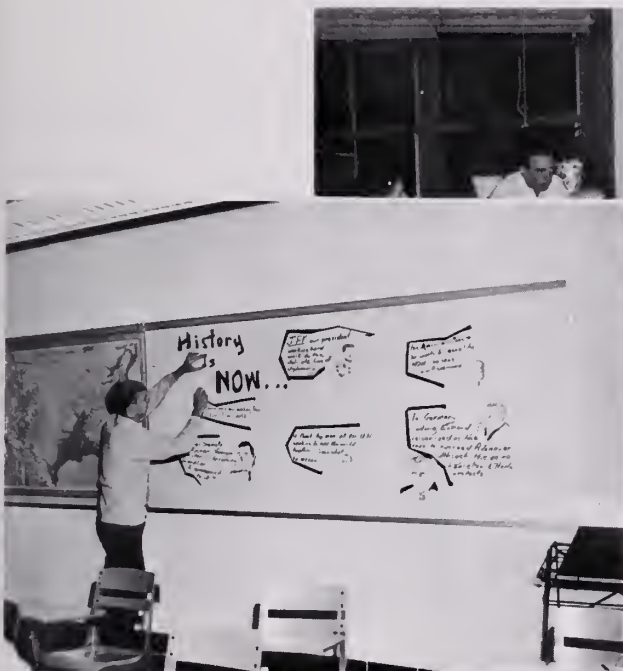

Although the cooks and custodians are kept busy by their many responsibilities, they always have time for a friendly smile and a warm greeting for everyone.

Custodians: Mrs. Jimmy Thomas, Mrs. Ruby Agnew, Mr. Tommy Royal, Mr. Jimmy Thomas.

Lunchroom workers: Mrs. Glenna Weddle; Mrs. Alice Howell; Mrs. Virginia Spence; Mrs. Gertrude Sowers, supervisor; Mrs. Ada Hazelwood; Mrs. Louise Hylton; Mrs. Bula Keith.

... in Curriculum ...

Searching is a siren word, beckoning all persons through myriad doors. A look into the many classrooms reveal heads bent in concentration, eyes uplifted for knowledge, and a silence—silence alive with the rustling of pages searched by exploring minds.

Classes are the reason for the school's existence. The classes at Floyd County High School are planned around three specific areas: academic, for those going to college before entering a profession; vocational, for those interested in the business world, home economics, or agriculture; and general, for those who do not choose to specialize in any one field. A student at FCHS is limited only by his ambitions.

It has often been said that "the law of life is the law of growth" and that "to quit growing is to die." As new improvements in departments, building structure, faculty, and students add to its continuous growth, it is evident that Floyd County High is offering unlimited opportunity to the youth of Floyd County.

Between the teacher and student there thrives a relationship of exchange. A student receives the knowledge he needs in order to face the challenges of tomorrow's world. To those who aid him in the gaining of this knowledge, the student repays threefold. From him the teacher is given the respect due; but he also receives a far greater gift—the gift of seeing the light of knowledge find its place in the heart of a young person.

This glance into the classrooms reveal many and varied activities:

History on a screen as students learn about their American heritage; the aroma of newly baked bread as future homemakers learn essential tasks needed to prepare happy homes for tomorrow's world; the joyous harmony of choral voices and the lively sound of the trumpet, brass, and sax; debator's voices with minds of their own; the buzz of a power saw ripping into a two by four; the sounds of a foreign tongue solving the language problem—these are sounds of the present but doorways to the future. At Floyd County High the past, present, and future are an important part of a school day.

A peek through these doorways to the future, reveal a possible answer to our puzzling search. Is the unique theme to be found here—in the academic life of students?

Inspiration . . . an English theme ingredient

Essential guides and rules for writing compositions are taught to students.

The English Department sponsored an artmobile from the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts for study and enjoyment by students.

English courses foster the expression of man's thoughts. They prepare students for college with a varied background in the different fields of English and help all students to derive pleasure from all phases of communication.

Students are grouped in sections of A, B, or C, according to their ability. Five credits in English are required for graduation.

Teachers in this department are Mrs. Dorothy Casteel, Mrs. Thelma Houchins, Mrs. Dorothy Vest, Mrs. Ruth Hallman, Mrs. Ruth Harman, Miss Beatrice Dickerson, Mrs. Roberta Hewett, and Mrs. Sue Lee Yeatts.

Jeanette Conner gains rhetoric experience by giving her book report to an English III class.

Susan Moore acts as student teacher of her English IV-A class.

Foreign affairs attract language study

Randy Hallman uses "flash" technique in testing students in Spanish vocabulary during a Spanish I class.

Latin II students write letters to the "Great Pumpkin" and then post them on the bulletin board.

Foreign language at Floyd County High School includes Latin I, Latin II, Spanish I and Spanish II. These are college preparatory subjects but are not required for graduation.

Miss Catherine Dobyns teaches Latin and Mrs. Ruth Harman teaches Spanish. Journalism students prepare and edit the newspaper, THE COUNTY CRIER. Mrs. Ruth Hallman, sponsor of the newspaper, teaches journalism. Speech, an elective course, is taught by Miss Marie Boothe. Interpretation and poise are goals for speech scholars.

Nancy Mitchell and Kay Simpson proofread the COUNTY CRIER, the school's newspaper.

Members of speech class find that experience is the easiest way to learn the points of debating.

Math meets some of modern life's demands

Algebra I students explain their homework problems on the board for the class.

Eighth grade math, general math, trigonometry, Algebra I, Algebra II, plane geometry and solid geometry are the seven courses offered by the Math Department. Two credits of math are required for graduation.

The teachers in the Math Department are Mr. Bob Statzer, Mrs. Virginia Altizer, Mrs. Alice Howard, Mr. William Davis, and Mrs. Lynda Leedy.

Cathy Falls explains a problem for a general math class.

Roger Bower proves a problem by use of a geometrical figure.

The general math class uses the blackboard often in explaining problems.

Advanced apparatus animates ancient laws

The Science Department includes General Science I, II, III, which approach the problem of science education from the point of view of environment, and introduce the laboratory science courses: biology, which is a study of living things; chemistry, which develops the power of observation of the student, trains him to solve problems in a logical manner, acquaints him with the basic principles of chemistry; physics, which encourages creativeness, initiative, scientific curiosity; human anatomy, which is a study of the human body.

Expensive laboratories and equipment enable students to make more specific studies and individual experiments. Two credits in science are required for graduation.

Teachers in this department are Mrs. Rakes, Mrs. Rutrough, Mr. Thomas, and Mrs. Turman.

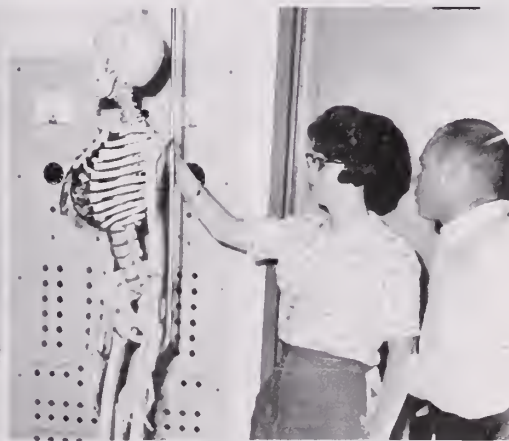

Biology students use microscopes to detect germs. They also dissect small animals, such as frogs.

General Science students use the bulletin board to present their experiments and discoveries.

Edward Weeks, Kay Simpson, Betty Wimmer, Roger Vest perform an experiment to discover the amount of liters found in a substance.

Brenda Roberson names the different bones of the skeleton for the human anatomy class.

The future depends upon the past and present

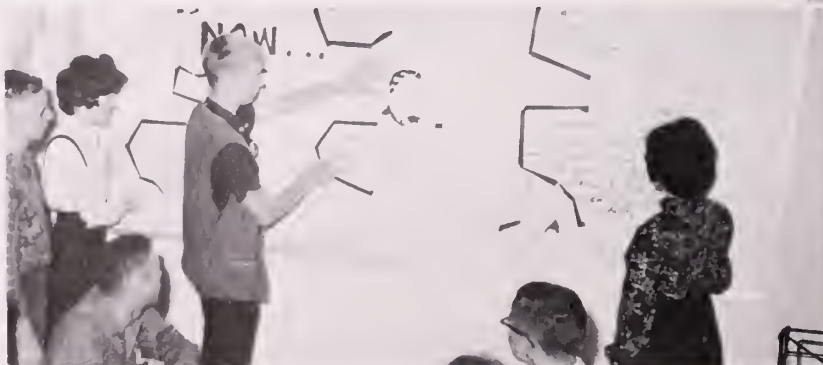

Government students discuss international trouble spots.

As the background proves, world geography is an interesting and vivid study.

World history is not only a study of ancient history, but it is also a study of history in the making.

"That couldn't be us!" History students locate Floyd County on the Virginia map.

The Social Studies Department consists of United States and Virginia history, World History, eighth grade history, civics, and World Geography. Three of these subjects are required. United States and Virginia History is taken by juniors, United States and Virginia government is taken by seniors, and credit in World History or World Geography is needed by all students. All other social studies courses are offered to students as electives.

Social studies classes unveil the past, present, and future.

Teachers in the Social Studies Department are Mrs. Jarratt, Mr. Harman, Mr. Enoch, Mrs. Hewett, Mr. Marshall and Mr. Houston.

Civics students study "Here and There in the World."

Nimble fingers and expert thinking

Typing I students use charts to trace their progress in speed work.

Mr. Harman explains an economics problem to Larry Thomas.

The Business Department has course offerings in Typing I, Typing II, personal-use typing, bookkeeping, Shorthand I, Shorthand II, office practice, business math, and general business. For the first time, economics was offered to students this year. These business subjects are all electives since no business credits are required for graduation. Business classes train students for future careers.

Teachers in this department are Mrs. Albert, Miss Slusher, Mr. Leedy, Mr. Statzer, and Mr. Harman.

Margie Cook and Joyce Perdue illustrate a real office situation in office practice class.

Bookkeeping students use their workbooks to prepare their daily lessons.

Dictation is an essential part of Shorthand II.

Here echo soft vibrant lines and sounds

Students in art class learn the basic skills used when working in ceramics.

Drum Major, Edward Weeks, teaches the correct band routine to Alice Epperly and Roger Vest.

The Music Department, the Art Department, and the Dramatics Department offer courses in band, choral, basic art, and dramatics. Band students participate in outside activities as well as school activities. The choral groups sing at special programs. Art students learn new methods of expressing themselves. Dramatics, a new course this year, trains students for acting.

All of these elective courses require talent and skill.

Mr. Kaufman is the band director, Mrs. Clara Harmon teaches choral and dramatics, and Miss Boothe teaches art.

Drama students use the tape recorder to record their voices for tryouts in a play.

Christine Hollandsworth prepares her solo for that "big day."

From Mu-Mu's to Moo-Moo's flows domestic life

Home Economics students learn about the mysteries of the kitchen so that they may become efficient homemakers.

The Applied Arts Department includes home economics, agriculture, shop and industrial arts. The purpose of Homemaking Education at Floyd County High School is to help students take part in homemaking activities in their parental homes and to prepare for the establishment of their own homes in the future.

Vocational agriculture is based upon the needs, interests, and capabilities of individuals and groups to be served. Shop boys learn to make useful items.

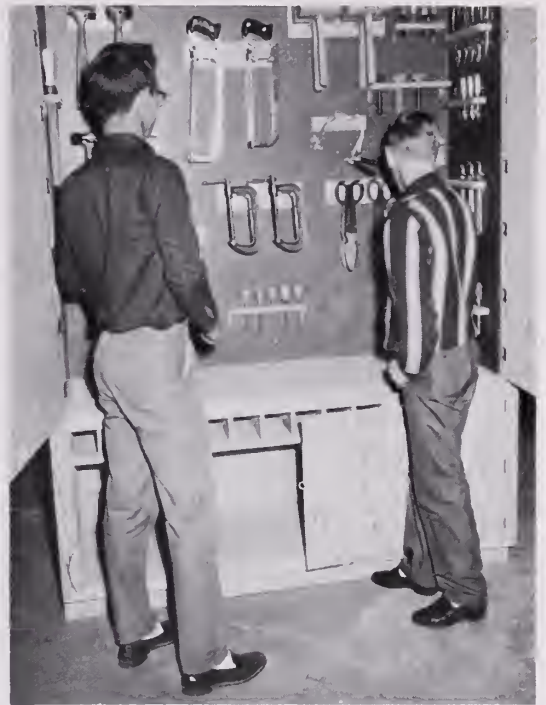

Industrial Arts provides broad experience in electricity, drafting, metals, wood, clay, plaster, and many other areas.

All of these courses are elective.

Teachers in this department include Mr. Agee, Mr. Harris, Mr. Keith and Mr. Jennings, agriculture and shop; Mrs. Cockram and Mrs. Gardner, home economics; and Mr. West, industrial arts.

In agriculture, Mr. Jennings helps a puzzled student.

One of the projects that the industrial arts boys undertake is the making of a handy tool cabinet.

Boys in shop are always anxious to learn how to operate a new machine.

Exercise with vim and vitality

Good posture is a trait which is essential for good health.

Many phases of gymnastics are taught to the boys in physical education.

Driver's training is taught to all students who want to take "behind the wheel" training.

Physical exercise is always a part of the physical education classes.

The Physical Education Department offers courses in physical education and health. The health and physical education program follows closely that recommended by the state, with two days for physical education, two for health, and one, when deemed advisable, for co-recreation.

The health program includes such topics as personal health, first aid, physiology and classwork in driver training.

The physical education program includes a period for sitting-up exercise and teaches such team and individual sports as softball, volleyball, basketball, soccer, football, wrestling, table tennis, tumbling, and gymnastics.

"Behind the wheel" driving is also taught.

Teachers in this department are Mrs. Lyons, instructor for the girls; and Mr. Meredith, boys' instructor.

Mr. Meredith shows his students the parts of the tooth.

The inbetweens offer a chance to relax

Another day! Students arrive at Floyd County High ready to face the day's busy schedule.

Classrooms are a place for concentration, but, as the changing bell breaks loose, all around Floyd County High the routine things lose themselves in the "inbetweens." Students find time to be with their favorite people. Their laughter seeps through the halls, their smiles illuminate the classrooms, and the sound of their vitality keeps the school alive.

Five minute breaks, lunch periods, homeroom and buses all offer a time for relief and a burst of laughter. These are the times when ideas emerge, when activities are planned, and when decisions are made. These glad times, when the mind is free, make a school day tick.

Members of the guidance department are always on hand to advise students on their future plans and to help them solve their present problems.

How do we ever make it—these breaks last only five minutes.

A warm meal is always a welcome sight.

The wide selection of references found in the library aids students in their preparation of those "dreadful term papers."

Bright spirits color Floyd County High

Football games, Floyd County's favorite outdoor sport, keep the fans in an uproar and team members exhausted.

As the cold winter approaches, fans move indoors to cheer their spirited Buffalo team to victory.

College day gives college-bound Seniors and Juniors a chance to meet and ask questions of representatives from their chosen colleges.

Members of the community truly enjoy the concerts presented by the Floyd County High School Band.

The eighth graders listen attentively as Miss Dobyns discusses their future years at Floyd County High.

One of the year's highlights is the concert by the Floyd County Glee Club.

Tommy Rakes keeps students happy by broadcasting the latest pop hits into the cafeteria.

. . . in Classes

Searching is a siren word beckoning all persons through myriad doors. Many of the doors through which the students gaze reveal many happy shining faces—faces which reflect the glowing personalities of students at Floyd County High.

The 816 students at FCHS come from every corner of the county to receive guidance and training for their role as citizens of tomorrow. They muse, they study, and they weigh the fundamental qualities of all human life.

In the bright eyes of the students, is to be found the hope for tomorrow. This peek reveals mixed emotions—frustration, followed by despair; a shattered world one moment, only to be followed by a burst of enthusiasm the next.

Students come to learn, and they do. They bring into the empty halls and silent rooms the wondrous vitality of youth.

A school is not measured by its buildings, classes, faculty, and facilities alone. The final touch to any measurement of value is the student himself. Yes, a school is judged by the students who pass through its doors.

The teenagers at Floyd County High are spirited, inquisitive, and wonderful. They learn together, but each student at Floyd County High is an individual in his own right. He contains all the qualities and traits that make him different from other individuals. He has his own private and yet bubbling personality.

These varied personalities merge and join in the teen-age tempo of foibles and fads. They join together in the chanting rhythm of "the Bossa Nova", the "chicness" of "the shift," and the strange saga of the telephone. Listening, talking, thinking, seeing, and being—these are the activities of the students at Floyd County High.

Yes, in these faces which speak of boundless enthusiasm, moments of triumph, and of despair, are to be found the Americans of tomorrow, the citizens of democracy. They pass, year by year, through the doors of FCHS. They come now, and they will continue to come—the happy ones, the sad, the gay ones, the shy. They grow here at Floyd County High. They leave the fads and foibles behind and begin to accept the responsibilities of adulthood. The vitality of their high school days will continue along the road with them and will aid them in their "pursuit of happiness."

A peek through the mirrors of the student body at FCHS reveal a possible answer to our puzzling search.

Is the unique theme to be found here; in the life of FCHS students?

"Tis not unnatural, but it certainly seems "a thing most strange." It also seems the guy from Macbeth knew what he was talking about.

In the year 1959, teens cried as Elvis had his hair cut; adults glued themselves to T. V. sets to see their "favorite quiz" shows; young people listened to popular hits like "Purple People Eater" and "Birdog"; millions attended the Brussels World Fair; Americans applauded Brigitte Bardot; the Atlas Missile traveled a full 6,325 miles; and at Check, Willis, and Floyd the 1964 graduating class began the first year of high school.

Eighth graders found a certain warmth and friendliness to greet them at the door leading to further study and fun. The class was suddenly picked up and swept along into the enthusiastic swirl of high school.

Then came a lengthened shadow, a cold breath, a fallen snowflake, frosted windshields, cold ice-biting chains, neck tingling snow balls... an unexpected snowfall, a freezing cold... and thoughts were turned indoors... ready to accept the seriousness of studies and tests and lectures and demonstrations. Now, with these recognitions of responsibility, students were truly members of a new life, their first real steps toward adulthood began here, with their first year.

As freshmen they accustomed themselves to the changing of classes, club meetings, pep rallies, new teachers and new faces. They were ready to apply for offices, to try for the ball teams, and to put themselves to any test. They were enthusiastically filled with school spirit and each did what he could to establish a high quality reputation for the school.

They were often teased and "picked at" by the upper-classmen who had traveled the same paths before them. They didn't realize this at that time so they vowed, as did past freshmen, to make theirs the best class that had ever reached for that diploma.

As spring neared, projects and reports—reports and projects began to be called for throughout all the classes. Freshmen were kept busy with English projects, science projects, and projects for foreign language and business courses. Book reports, historical reports, biographical reports kept minds occupied during the remainder of the year. Despite the times devoted to study, they were able to enjoy the fun-filled side of life, too.

Then suddenly on a rainy September day in 1961 the discovery was made that their identity was changed. They were no longer freshmen but sophomores. They had reached the half-way mark of their journey.

It was evident that leaders were developing among them as several sophomores began to attain offices in clubs and as several made plans to attend district and state meetings. During this year, a realization of the future became stark reality.

As sophomores they would spend their last year as three separate institutions. The following year they would experience a dream come true. The county's new accredited high school which would provide for its youth the best facilities and opportunities for the future. The following year the class of 1964 would merge from the Check, Willis, and Floyd High Schools into a new and exciting class at Floyd County High. Many hesitated at this move. They feared the leaving of the halls and classrooms they had come to know so well.

Spring came and with it came the endings and beginnings, the end of one way of education and the beginning of another.

Seniors on the basketball team have finished a long practice and start home to regain their strength with "dinner: and an hour of television.

Their junior year—as each student stepped onto the bus, he was not sure what awaited him at the end of his journey. As he walked into the new building, expecting it to be different, he was surprised to find that it wasn't so strange after all. Time passed on, and things that had no immediate meaning began to take on a familiar look; the class discovered a friendly atmosphere combined with learning; they found themselves willingly reaching out for knowledge. On the way to school, in the halls, in classes, one became lost in others.

Unlike classes of previous years, the curriculum offered lines of study in different fields. The juniors were offered classes which were vocational, academic, and general, depending on what each student was planning to do after graduation.

Together, as a whole, the Class of 1964 elected its first class officers. Voted to lead them in their junior year were Lonnie Slaughter, president; Kenny Williams, vice-president; Martha Alderman, secretary; Larry Gearhart, treasurer; and David Keith, reporter.

Now, they belonged together... they were swept high on peaks of enthusiasm at football games... there was and still remains a feeling of "oneness" among them.

The young adults began to look more seriously at the future, and many chose the major field of work they wished to pursue and set about obtaining it.

As spring crept slowly around the corner, thoughts turned to that all-important event—the Junior-Senior Prom. Led onward by class officers, plans for that special time of year began. Showboats, a paper moon, and candle-light provided a romantic setting for the Prom. A couple on a painted mural watched the couples below them as they danced to the theme song, "Moon River." The Prom was a complete success and brought their junior year at Floyd County High to an exciting end.

In September of 1963, they began to develop a more mature attitude toward life and its enduring responsibilities. It is their SENIOR year. Class members star in every facet of life at Floyd County High School. Several members of the senior class serve as officers in clubs on county and district levels. Senior athletes rate high in district competition; others attend state conventions in the Future Homemakers, Future Farmers, Beta and 4-H Clubs. Floyd County's Class of '64 is truly a class of quality.

Because there was a need for able leaders, the seniors met and held elections for class officers. Those chosen to lead them were, Larry Gearhart, president; Richard Burton, vice-president; Lawrence Brannon, secretary; Patty Belcher, treasurer; Kenny Williams, reporter.

At Homecoming, at the Christmas Parade, at athletic events, and at other school projects, seniors are leading, organizing, helping, and promoting to make them successful.

One of the highlights of the senior year has been the receiving of their class rings. Different shapes and sizes—the rings will remain with them as a symbol of their days at Floyd County High.

The SENIOR YEAR of the 1964 graduating class is the most glorious year at Floyd County High, for it gives each member an intimate, but challenging, glimpse into the dire responsibilities of life as an upcoming adult. No longer children, they are now looking forward to the future whether it be a college education, a new job, or the armed forces. It has been a fun year but a most serious one, too. The recognition and guidance given them by the faculty and administration over the past five years has nourished young adults who are ready to face further challenges in a demanding environment.

One of the toughest tasks a student has is the compiling of a term paper, and no one realizes that more than a "Senior."

The tragic death of the young president, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, made the senior class at Floyd County even more aware of the responsibilities they would assume as tomorrow's citizens.

Perhaps more than any other event in our lives, the tragic death of our young President, has revealed to us more fully the dire seriousness of our responsibilities as young citizens. John Fitzgerald Kennedy realized that if democracy and the American way of life are to survive, the youth of this country must be educated in the principles of freedom. Because he realized that the young people wanted to actively help their country, he included them in many of his programs. He established the Peace Corps, and gave youth a reason to try. As they reach out, their hand upturned for that precious diploma, as they walk out through that door into the awaiting world, they will remember the challenge he left with them:

"Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

. . . in Organizations . . .

Searching is a siren word beckoning all persons through myriad doors. A step across the threshold of this doorway finds one suddenly surrounded by friendly activity—the peppy, spirited world of clubs, a world where service is the key word. These club activities make Floyd County High a school of which all Floyd Countians can be proud.

Through club participation, FCHS students broaden their training in public speaking, parliamentary procedure, and group activity. In addition, club activities offer members a chance to share ideas and experiences with those persons with whom he has a common interest. Through his work in organizations, an individual develops his qualities of service, leadership, character, and initiative. It is through club activities that a student finds the foundation for membership in civic, political, cultural, and religious organizations that will beckon to him in adult life.

Initiation pranks, blindfolded first-year members, chapter sweethearts, cokes, the salty fragrance of popcorn, the recognizable blare of a record player—these are the things which constitute the humorous side of club activities.

All these activities produce a big story, and every big story produces its own headlines. The organizations at Floyd County High are continually producing headlines—headlines which bring all the facets of their dedicated service before the public eye.

From the Beta pinning ceremony to the proofreading of annual copy, each and every member of an organization knows that he is building new traditions which will continue to live at FCHS.

A peek back through these doorways, disclosing friendly activity and dedicated service, offers a possible answer to our puzzling search.

Is the unique theme to be found here in the varied activities of organizations?

The Student Co-operative Association

Officers: Tommy Rakes, secretary; Mike Harmon, vice president; Mr. William Davis, sponsor; Glenn Gallimore, president; Randy Hallman, reporter. Not pictured: Donnie Reed, treasurer.

"The SCA shall consist of every student enrolled in Floyd County High School..."so begins the constitution of the FCHS Student Cooperative Association. The entire school participates in the nomination and election of officers and each homeroom is represented. These representatives, with the class officers, make up the student council. These students make suggestions for administrative approval and strive to give the faculty a clear picture of school atmosphere from the student's point of view.

Committees and the executive council meet prior to the SCA council to make decisions about matters related to that meeting.

Floyd County High serves as the host school for the New River District meeting.

Executive committee: Donnie Reed, Mike Harmon, Larry Gearhart, James Conner, Larry Thomas, Randy Hallman, Steve Hill, Patsy Phillips, Shelby Quesenberry, Janet Slusher, Tommy Rakes, Glenn Gallimore.

The sock hop committee prepares to get the dancing started.

sponsors first Homecoming

Projects undertaken in 1963'64 by the SCA include: the Homecoming dance and program, school bulletin board assignments, the Madonna pageant, the Christmas tree, a trip to Saturday Session, and several sock hops.

Changes in the school handbooks, locker inspections and music programs for the lunchroom were also carried out by the SCA.

Following in the footsteps of the initial student council, sponsors, Mr. Davis and Miss Dobyns, and the president of the student body, Glenn Gallimore, guided smoothly the student body activities and programs of work.

As he broadcasts music to the cafeteria, Tommy Rakes finds that the "Beatles" have become a popular four-some at FCHS.

Student Co-operative Association

Although they haven't got the hang of a chorus line, the cast of an SCA play presented an interesting and informative program on the importance of an education.

Members: First row: Patricia Link, Doris Williams, Patsy Phillips, David Weeks, Bruce Rakes, Linda Weeks, Lorene Dalton, Judy Hollandsworth, Janet Slusher, Miss Catherine Dobyns, co-sponsor. Second row: Joyce Marie Conner, Linda Aldridge, Susan Wimmer, Yvonne Vest, Patricia

Spence, Charlotte Wimmer, Sandra Williams, Mike Harman, Douglas Thompson. Third row: Glenn Gallimore, Janet Thomas, Sue Cox, Shirley Goode, Tommy Rakes, Randy Hallman, Arthur Spence, Samuel Hancock, Kenneth Hall, Ben Harmon, John Lemons.

As they are officially accepted into the Beta Club, newly tapped members receive congratulations from Mr. Ray Hollandsworth, principal.

The Floyd County Beta Chapter is composed of those junior and senior students who are of worthy character, good mentality, creditable achievement and commendable attitude and who have an academic average of ninety or above.

Floyd County Betas are recognized for their good leadership qualities. Members who serve as president of various FCHS clubs for this school year are: Janet Slusher, FTA and Inter-Club Council; Nancy Harris, Science Club; Patty Belcher, Library Club; Charlotte Wimmer, FBLA; Sandra Caldwell, FHA; and Kenny Williams, FFA. Glenn Gallimore serves as president of the Student Council. Catherine Vaughn represents the FCHS yearbook, THE BISON, as editor, and Willa Dean Williams heads the County Crier, the school newspaper.

Beta members have also been awarded other honors throughout the year. Sandra Caldwell was Homecoming Queen and received the D. A. R. Good Citizenship Award.

Is the Beta Club strictly an honor group?

The answer—it's honor—dedicated service—and fun.

The Beta members work together on various projects which they feel will promote a good feeling among the students at FCHS. They have fun working together and making things worth-

During initiation in the fall, members of the Teen-Angels Tri-Hi-Y were required to dress as angels.

The Teen-Angels Tri-Hi-Y, in its second year, has doubled its membership to over 40 members. The club is composed of eighth and ninth grade girls who help carry out the club's purpose—to create, maintain and extend throughout the home, school and community high standards of Christian character.

The main project for the year was the selling of corsages for the Homecoming Dance. The club entered the Floyd Christmas Parade with the theme, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." The club also sponsored a safe-driving campaigns, Easter Seal drive, and gave devotions over the intercom for the school's spiritual benefit.

As a service project, the members also collected and distributed magazines to hospitals to help patients pass their time.

FTA

One of the main FTA activities is a school-provided tour of a near-by college.

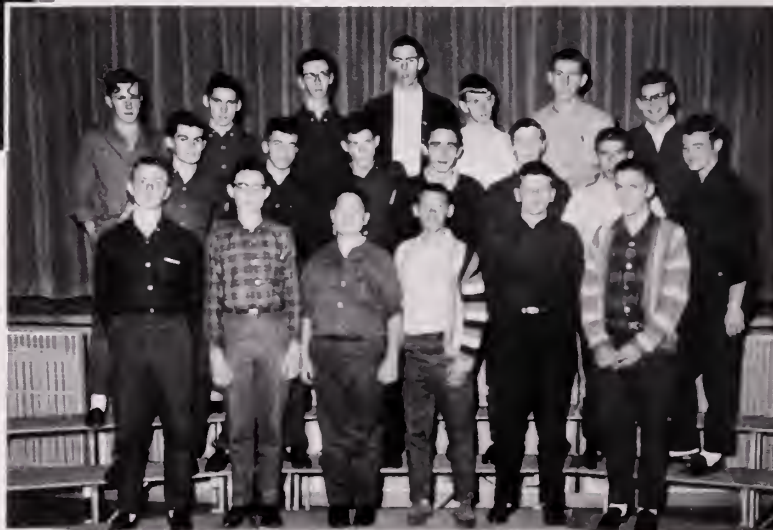

The W. A. Compton Chapter of the Future Teachers of America is composed of students who are interested in a teaching career. This is the only requirement for admission to the FTA organization; however, once a member, a person must be active in club activities.

The chief purpose of the club is to help future teachers learn facts about the profession and the opportunities of teaching in their locality, state, and nation, and to cultivate character qualities essential to a good teacher, to study work of great teachers, and to develop student leadership.

Some of the member's duties are baby-sitting for school programs, preparing bulletin boards, grading papers, and substitute teaching.

Two highlights of the year are: sending a delegation, with the sponsor, to the State Convention, and taking the members on an educational tour of a nearby college.

Members of Bison staff search

Paulette Conner, business manager, and Catherine Vaughn, editor-in-chief, discuss the financial problems of yearbook production.

The BISON serves as a "storehouse of memories" for the students at Floyd County High. It combines the events which have made 1964 a highlight year at Floyd County.

The staff has put forth great effort to produce a rewarding yearbook, having made several new additions this year. These additions include printing the school name on the backbone of the book, using black end sheets, and adding several pages which feature many new layouts and interesting pictures.

Layout, pictures, and copy are only a part of the trying, but rewarding, task of compiling the 1964 BISON.

The process of preparing a yearbook begins early in the spring when the editor-in-chief and business manager attend the annual convention of the Southern Interscholastic Press Association at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Virginia.

Yes, the task of preparing a yearbook for publication is a very complicated and trying job. Society encourages creative writing

The William T. Harry Chapter of the Quill and Scroll, honorary journalistic society of Floyd County High School, is a nationally affiliated organization. Members must have done superior work in writing, editing, or in business management, and must have displayed a genuine interest in journalism to be selected for membership. The highest objective of the society is to encourage and reward individual achievement in journalism. To carry out their objectives, members have carried on a successful campaign to interest students in the rewards of creative writing.

Members prepare informative bulletin boards about creative writing which provide various opportunities for the interested student.

Another major project of the society is the preparation and selling of a student directory.

Through their efforts to contribute to the advancement of young journalists, members of the Quill and Scroll prove that they "believe in the profession of journalism for the present and future freedom of press and speech."

The March of Dimes Campaign is carried out in Floyd County each year under the direction of a county director. It is the duty of this director to co-ordinate all fund-raising activities.

The Floyd County High School Future Business Leaders of America Chapter has made the March of Dimes Campaign their major project for the year. The FBLA assists the campaign by preparing materials, typing letters, and conducting other March of Dimes business. The FBLA, in doing this, contributes the maximum secretarial and clerical service to the effort of the M.O.D., while at the same time, gaining the educational experience involved in handling supplies, office procedure, and mailing functions.

The March of Dimes Campaign fulfills the needs for financial assistance to support 48 centers for treating birth defects and 29 centers for treating arthritis throughout the country. In 1963 the National Foundation awarded $3,812,000 to research centers.

The Floyd County High School FBLA takes pride in the fact that they can be a part of this worthwhile effort for the abolishment of crippling diseases in children and adults.

"Parking cars is our speciality." These boys are responsible for directing the parking of cars so that they may be conveniently moved at any time.

The patrol parks cars at plays, at ballgames, and other school events. In all types of weather, they are there to help out the drivers. They work very much like mailmen, never letting the rain, sleet, or hail keep them from their work.

This job, as most everyone knows, is a big one and takes big-hearted guys to handle it.

"Now, let's do this thing right." Mr. West gives the fellows a few directions for parking the remaining cars.

it "full to the brim"

Varsity Club members get behind their school and push all the way. They understand the importance of a student caring about his school. They know that scholarship without a smile, a joke or two, and a little friendliness is of no real value to an individual.

The Varsity Club undertook various money-making projects which were related to their promotion of school spirit. They sold hats and sweat shirts which bore the name "Buffaloes." Selling concessions to hungry fans proved to be fun as well as profitable.

To end the year on a high note, the Varsity Club sponsors an Athletic Banquet at which outstanding football and basketball players are recognized and presented letters and trophies.

"I'd rather have your money—but guess I'll settle for a Buffalo sweat shirt."

Virginia is often referred to as the "Mother State," and no one does more to preserve the natural wonders found here than the members of the KVG. The one great natural wonder which calls for most protection is the greenery of our forests and fields.

The organization, operated much like that of the voluntary fireman, is on call during school hours to fight forest fires.

Members of the club attend the annual training day sponsored by the Virginia Forest Service. During this time, the boys are instructed on the correct fire fighting and prevention procedures.

"Searching" is a siren word beckoning all persons through myriad doors. A peek through many of these doors oft'time finds them rose-colored and adorned with tradition, old and new. These doors extend an invitation to rove where mirthful moments are many and where friendliness is contagious.

These doorways frame the things that are apart from everyday happenings; and upon entering these special places, our hearts focus on friendly activity. Thoughts soar high as the campus queen reigns and candidates campaign.

These happy, carefree days challenge students, and make them wise. Laughter adds new dimension to the world of study.

These wonderful, swirling activities weave a fantasy of beauty throughout the year. From Homecoming to Graduation, in the span of a year, these are the things which will be remembered.

As new traditions are begun, students see those who have worked hard beyond the call of duty to make the year successful. Their eyes fall on the bright awards and sparkling trophies that are being won day by day.

The things they find as they go on their way remind them of dream worlds—the bright clouds of swirling lace and frill, blaring bands, cheering crowds, the merriment of a parade, delights, excitement—these moments of festivity all make up their happy world of special events.

They travel further along and the tempo suddenly changes. They no longer hear the soft melodies of a waltz, but they find themselves listening to swinging rhapsodies and rhythmic, pulsating jazzy tunes. They float on a breeze as another sparkling phase of this world is unfolded before them.

All the wonderful things to be found here—quiet, peace, sentiment, laughter, joy, fun—seem to make the life of the activities whole within themselves, but as they look on they find quite a different story—the fun-filled evenings, the special recognition, and all the other things that make happy memories are outgrowths of the more serious side of school. These special activities are correlated with all other phases of school life.

These wonderful times, these special places make wonderful memories and light up the school year.

A peek through these doorways, disclosing fun in the making, offers a possible answer to our puzzling search. Is the unique theme to be found here, in the social life of our students?

Pretty faces, a hard fought game

THE 1963 HOMECOMING QUEEN
Sandra Caldwell

The excitement of the evening reaches its height as Mr. Alonzo Monday crowns Sandra Caldwell the first Homecoming Queen at Floyd County High.

The Queen and her court leave the field to prepare for their reign over the evening's festivities.

Homecoming! High spirits reign high as cheers ring through the halls, and yellow mums seem to come from everywhere—excitement is supreme.

As the last rays of sun fade and disappear, the chilly November day turns to night and the game commences.

During the half time ritual a Queen elected by the populace receives her flowered crown and begins her sparkling reign over loyal subjects, her regal radiance shining before the eyes of cheering fans.

and the marching band complete the '63 homecoming

The spunky sports supporters lead the fans in a brisk team booster.

Fans hold their breath as the mighty Buffaloes set up to "charge."

The entire evening proved to be an exciting smash with the Buffaloes' trouncing of the Rural Retreat Indians, 23-0. An overflow crowd of enthusiastic fans saw history in the making as the first fieldgoal was kicked on the Buffalo gridiron.

Immediately following the game, thoughts left the brisk outside night, and hearts turned to the warm indoors and the polished dancing floor.

The night ended and all that remains are the memories of Rural Retreat's frown, Sandra Caldwell's crown and the dance combo's sound.

The peppy music provided by the Floyd County High dance combo swirls out onto the floor and keeps the dancing couples on their feet.

"Hail! Hail! The gang's all here." The spirit of Homecoming is evident in the smiling faces of the dancing couples.

Class competition proves more than fun

Class demonstrations enlivened the magazine assembly and stirred up plenty of class spirit.

Magazine Campaign

Competition among the classes was a feature of the annual magazine campaign. Each class tried to out-do the others by the use of banners, costumes, bands, and cheers. Each attempted to show that their class was the best.

After three weeks of hard work, students who had reached their quotas were rewarded with fuzzy dogs, green frogs, wormy apples, and citations.

Jeannie Harmon, campaign chairman, presided over the assembly which marked the end of the drive. The campaign proved very successful with a total sale of $3971.07 worth of magazines. Profits went for the purchase of new books for the library.

Business managers, Curtis Epperly and Joann Harden, work with the sales sponsor, Mrs. Virginia Altizer, to make sure the records balance.

Steve Hill, president of the sophomore class, and Sandra Surber, high salesman, accepted the school trophy as representatives of the highest-selling class.

Jeannie Harmon presents the 50 dollar mystery winner his reward for participating in the magazine sales.

Students discover new worlds in assemblies

Glenn Gallimore, SCA president, presides over all assemblies.

"But I need a new hat." Students participate in a one-act play stressing the importance of education.

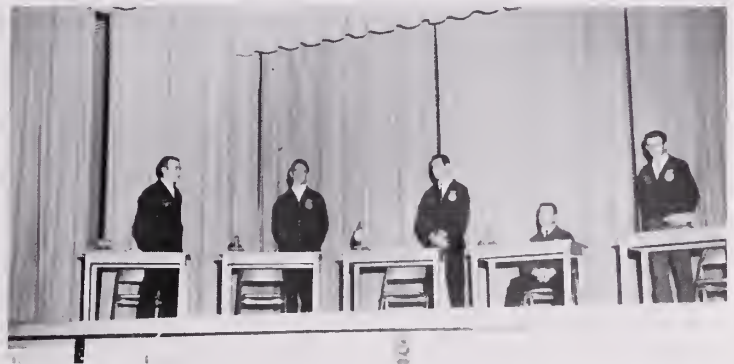

Once a month, life at Floyd County High is brightened by interesting and informative assemblies.

The purpose of the first 63-64 assembly was to recognize students who participated in summer related activities and to hear some of them tell about the highlights of their trips.

Another example of the fine job which is done in preparing and presenting programs was the assembly which took place American Education Week. Special entertainment included a short play, "Reach for the Stars," which was directed by Mr. John Sabo. The one-act play emphasized the importance of education.

Kenny Williams, FFA President, stresses the importance of vocational agriculture in today's world.

Officers of the FFA stage a mock meeting for the benefit of the student body.

Members of the student body leave each assembly with a new insight on student problems.

Put a little "umph" behind that line.

The Form Divine, a three-act comedy, was presented by the Class of '64 on November 22 and 24. Under the direction of Miss Marie Boothe and student director, Patty Belcher, the production made the attentive audiences burst with laughter.

The story concerns a girl by the name of Hoopy (Willa Dean Williams) who is in love with a boy named Jimmy (Ben Harmon). Hoopy is trying to attract Jimmy away from a flirtatious teenager (Nancy Howard).

Jimmy has the idea that he can tell what a girl will look like 15 or 20 years from now by looking at her mother. Hoopy's mother (Jeanie Harmon) is rather drab in her looks and dress, so Hoopy decides that Jimmy will have to call for her at their friend Peggy's (Shirley Vest) house.

Mother, in the meantime, is visited by an old sorority sister (Mary Louise Sowers) who lectures her constantly because she is skinny. She also gets wind of Hoopy's plans so she inquires about a beauty school called "Beautiful You."

After talking with the school consultant, Miss Meadows, (Pearl Via) she and a friend Dorothy (Catherine Vaughn) enroll in the eight-week class.

"Come on, Harry, cough."
"Everyone has a reaction when they swallow elbow remover."

So, what's new? We go through this every morning.

"I'm sure we can improve you. Anybody could."

She hesitates to tell her husband, Arthur (Harry Harmon), for the class costs over $200.

In the beauty class is a chorus girl, Paris Green (Anna Weeks), whose boy-friend Harry (James Johnson) is a sort of gangster type. Also enrolled is Miss Nitz (Carolyn Reed).

After eight weeks of beauty school, Lucilla is transformed into a fashionable looking lady, whom Jimmy comes to like very much, thus ending the play on a happy note.

The play cast and Miss Boothe spent many hours of hard work preparing this delightful play, but the play's success was also dependent on the work of the committees. The make-up committee is to be commended for its excellent job in changing the senior girls into women of forty or forty-five. The job performed by the boys back stage was as important as any, including the jobs in lighting and sound effects.

The cast members have forgotten their lines and have changed their appearances, but the memories of the senior play will linger with each of them for years to come.

They're at it again, and even a German housekeeper can't help matters.

Hard work and gooey faces—that's what it takes to be successful.

Portrayal of Madonna heads Christmas assembly

The Christmas scene is portrayed by Madonna, Anna Weeks; Angel, Sandra Caldwell; and members of the Glee Club.

Madonna

Madonna Candidates: Janet Slusher, Margaret Wimmer, Anna Weeks, Sandra Caldwell, Charlotte Wimmer.

The Christmas assembly this year centered around Madonna, Anna Weeks, and Angel, Sandra Caldwell. Six senior girls selected by the faculty were competing for this honor. They were: Janet Slusher, Anna Weeks, Glenne Rose Williams, Charlotte Wimmer, Sandra Caldwell, and Margaret Wimmer. Members of the Senior class made the final decision when each voted for the candidate of his choice.

This is one of the most desired honors for a senior girl. The qualifications are that the candidate must show high Christian standards, and must have demonstrated her qualities of moral responsibility and leadership. She must have proven herself to be a good citizen in her school, community, and church. To be placed on the ballot is an honor in itself and will be one of the things these candidates will recall when their memories turn back pages to high school years.

Randy Hallman, Kay Simpson, and Janet Slusher tell the Christmas story by use of Christmas selections and scriptures.

Queen and court: Marge McAlexander, Charlotte Wimmer, Patty Belcher, Nancy Howard, Melanie Akers.

Snow Queen, Patty Belcher, and her court reigned over festivities opening Floyd County's Christmas season. Nancy Howard and Charlotte Wimmer were Senior Attendants. Attendants from the Junior class were Marge McAlexander and Melanie Akers.

The Queen and her attendants rode in the Christmas parade on a float designed and prepared by the Beta Club members. The float won first place recognition in the parade.

Other entries included the FHA float, a home scene based on the theme, "The family who prays together stays together." The FFA float was a workshop, and an office scene was depicted by FBLA members. The Teen Angels had an old-fashioned Christmas scene, complete with Grandma and a fireplace. Contrasting this the Science Club went modern and had Santa, seated on a missile, ready to go into orbit.

The Beta Club float, which carried the Snow Queen and her court, won first place in the Floyd Christmas Parade.

One of the greatest assets to the name of Floyd County High School is the band. Under the able leadership of Director Jack Kaufman, the band plays for football games, for school parades, and for other parades sponsored by the community, for school assemblies, and for its yearly concerts.

Members of the band work long and hard to become an accomplished group of musicians and we at FCHS know they have reached their goal.

The band is a part of our school life and brings to FCHS high praise and awards.

The soft melody of the flute and the brassy sound of the sax soar out into the halls and down the corridor and play on the ear of those who enjoy their fine musical qualities.

In addition to the colorful and varied programs that it presents to FCHS students, the band competes in District and All-State Contests.

Floyd County High students are proud of their band, and it will be one of the things always remembered.

One of the main highlights of the year was a community concert presented by the music department.

Floyd County High is fortunate in having a chorogroup which furnishes entertainment on many occasions. The Glee Club now has 46 members.

Three choral classes are taught by the director, Mr. Clara Harmon. The most talented and experienced students in class take part in special performances and concerts.

Among other programs, the Glee Club sings at school assemblies, and at a number of PTA meetings.

One feature which has become an annual attraction for many people is the Christmas concert. This program puts the holiday season into full swing at Floyd County High.

Music was, also, a part of the school Christmas assembly. Furnishing a musical background for the Madonna and Angel, the Glee Club helped portray the Christmas scene.

In spite of the long hours of practice, members are glad to be a part of this important phase of school life.

... others hang a mural of a southern plantation.

With a mist of heavenly moonlight, the Junior-Senior Prom, held May 15, 1964, became a perfect dream of rare memories. The evening was opened with a welcome by Junior Class president, James Conner; and Larry Gearheart, Senior Class president, responded with warm thanks. Special guests included the faculty and parents of the Junior and Senior Class officers. The floorshow began with a special dance for the Seniors and their dates to the theme song, "My Own True Love," and other entertainment was provided by "The Elaters" of FCHS. As moonbeams and melodious strains floated aloft, the couples drifted into "dreams of Dixie" in the southern plantation atmosphere.

... in Sports ...

Searching is a siren word beckoning all persons through myriad doors. Many of the doors through which students travel lead outdoors, indoors, and back to the outside. These are the many doors leading to the athletic aspects of school life. The athletic program at Floyd County High is based on a philosophy that fair play and the ability to work as a team are the fundamental principles of any sport. High interests in athletics and recreation prevail and the spirit of good sportsmanship upholds the ideals of the school.

Alexander Pope once wrote that "true disputants are like true sportsmen, their whole delight is in the pursuit." It's not the win or loss but the anticipation, the excitement of trying, the fury of physical exertion, and the chant of vivacious crowds that leave memories in the minds of the participants and spectators.

While passing through these doors the students feel the fierceness of flexing muscles, they feel the tension and excitement of young and active sportsmen. Into these feelings flow the sounds of animated crowds led by vivid cheering squads, the collective groan that ripples through the bleachers swelling to a single cry of agony, and the crowd's intake of breath as the touchdown is scored and pandemonium reigns supreme.

As scenes of the gridiron battles, of loaded bases, of the stretch for that extra inch over the bar, and as the break away pivots pass before them, FCHS students realize that team spirit and the desire to win account for only two of the qualities that athletics instill in both its participants and the sports fans.

These doors to spirited athletics call to students the thrill at razzle-dazzle of the gridiron season, and to the breath-taking cross-country runs and the stealthy crouch of the hind-catcher as the bases become loaded and the bat meets the ball for a "grand-slammer" across the home run fence carrying the supreme excitement into the spring season.

Because of his participation in these activities, the restless and wonderful FCHSster comes to know the tumult of conflict, the tireless enthusiasm of a team called the "Mighty Buffaloes," and the star-quality personalities on gridiron, hardwood, and cinder path. In these soul-restoring battles for championship, character emerges.

Is the unique theme to be found here; in the rough and tumble of athletics?

Second year of baseball shows improvement

Having more experience and enthusiasm, the Buffaloes developed a better record than they had last year. With six wins and only eight losses, those returning for '64-'65 look forward to more success.

Pitcher Ivan Phillips winds up for the third strike.

Excitement mounts as the runner nears home plate.

The baseball diamond was an addition to the athletic field this year.

Track team works for stamina and speed

This year marked the first time Floyd County participated in track on the varsity level. The squad was composed of only fifteen boys which greatly hampered their chances of victory. The boys trained hard but just did not have the depth to cope with the larger squads. The Buffaloes were defeated by Christiansburg in a dual meet and by Sparta, N. C. and Independence in a triangular meet.

The District VI meet was held on the new track at Floyd. Independence edged Floyd for first place, followed by Fries and Rural Retreat. With the loss of only two Seniors, the future looks bright for the trackmen next year.

Senior trackman D. J. Keith shows good form putting the shot in practice for the district meet.

Gary Shockey crosses the finish line ahead of Mike Keith in an intrasquad relay.

Paul Phillips, District VI high-jump champion, clears the bar.

In the mile relay, Ray Mitchell prepares to hand the baton to the anchor man.

Banquet shows achievements of winter sports

A happy herd of Buffaloes indicate the school's first district championship. They have just finished drubbing Independence 72-38 in the tournament finals.

The season opened with only four returning lettermen on hand. The team improved steadily as the season progressed. A sound pressing defense and fast breaking offense proved to be the best weapons. By tournament time, the Buffaloes were playing their best ball as was evidenced by their two resounding victories over Fries in the first round and Independence in the championship game.

Tommy Rakes shows good form in shooting over Pennington's 6'7" center, Mike Olinger. Tommy was named to the All-State Tournament second team.

The Buffaloes played their usual good defense but experienced cold shooting in the spacious Virginia Tech Coliseum, as they lost in first round of the State Tournament. After playing even with the larger Pennington boys in the first quarter, the "Bufs" lost their shooting touch and never caught up. Pennington kept building the lead until the final score read 60-40.

Mr. Tom Hawks, district chairman, presents the championship trophy to the Buffaloes tri-captains and Coach Meredith as Mr. Hollandsworth looks on.

Recipients of outstanding player awards: Kneeling: James Conner, David Keith, Ken Hall. Standing: Paul Phillips, Tommy Rakes, Lonnie Slaughter.

Guest speaker Carol Dale addresses the annual Varsity Club Banquet. He is a former VPI All-American, now playing with the professional Los Angeles Rams.

Buffaloes rate number one . . .

Tommy Rakes, Ray Mitchell, Randy Hallman, John Harris.

For the second straight season Floyd County's basketball team has held its own in district competition. With thoughts of the district championship before them, the Buffaloes practice many hours to strengthen their coordination and teamwork. The Coach's criticism, loud but helpful, keeps the boys on the go.

The county's number one indoor sport offers a player a chance to enjoy the mechanics of teamwork and sportsmanship. In basketball each player learns that in order to win, he must carry out certain responsibilities. He learns to give everything he has and he learns that only by doing this will he know the satisfactions found in fair competition. A player learns from his mistakes, and he realizes that the way he plays the game will reflect on the character of his school. These boys know that if they lose the game and have played fairly they are the best kind of winners.

Co-captains and coach: Billy Quesenberry, Mr. Don Meredith, Lonnie Slaughter, Paul Phillips.

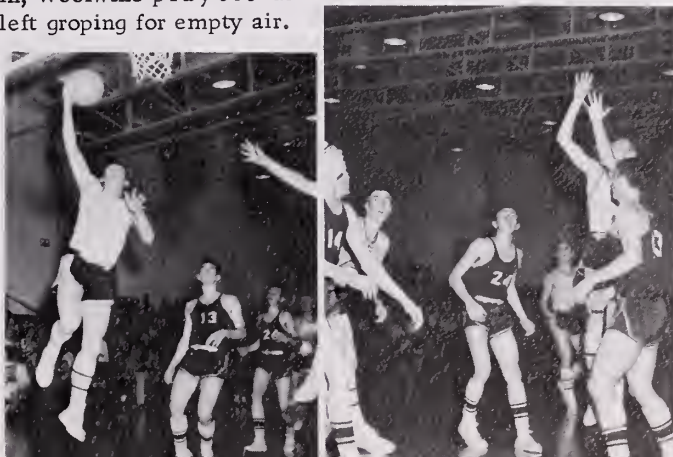

Varsity

"That boy gets up there." Height proves no problem for Randy Hallman.

"That's a boy, No. 50." As Lonnie Slaughter lays one in, Woolwine players are left groping for empty air.

Surrounded by Woolwine players, Joe Boone breaks loose with a jump shot.

... in district competitive standings

J. V. team members: First row: Robert Reed, James Wimmer, Bery Vest. Second row: John Woollums, Ronnie Kidd, Darrell Hollandsworth, Denny Akers, Larry Turman, Bruce Rakes. Third row: Coach Bob Statzer, Richard Nester, James Vest, Dennis Wade, Lowell Yeatts, Bruce Agee.

The Junior Varsity and Eighth Grade teams have worked hard and practiced long to learn the basic and fundamental traits of basketball.

Although they seem awkward at first, these boys show reason to believe that they will add much to the Varsity team in years to come. Unsure of themselves now, they continue to learn. As they play day after day the boys on these teams begin to develop the skills of ball handling. They don't expect to know all and perform all now—for they understand that only through experience can one come close to perfection.

Managers: Sterling Howerly, William Conner.

J.V.

Eighth grade team: First row: Manager Jack Shortt, Gary Cockram, Alton Weddle, Galen Pate, Arthur Porter, Gary Dillon, Allen Weeks, Manager Ricky Williams. Second row: Freddy Bannick, Eddie Eanes, Bill Freeman, Ronnie Phipps, Garry Myers, Johnny Criner, Gary Nolen, Bill Cook, Coach Ellis Enoch.

Indoors, outdoors, the Buffalo cheerleaders lead the crowds in cries for victory.

Team members: First row: James Conner; Mike Keith; Glenn Thomas; Paul Phillips; Bobbie Gillespie; Lonnie Slaughter; Glenn Gallimore; Ken Hall; David Keith; Charles Sutphin; Wayne Lester; Vernon Page; Ray

Mitchell. Second row: Joe Horton, manager; Clifford Mabery; Dorn Marks; Allan Harman; Ronnie Kidd; Bruce Rakes; Lowell Yeatts; John Woollums; Randolph Cromer; Jimmy Shaver; Gerald Vest; Rudolph Finny; Gary Shockey.

Mr. Don Meredith, assistant coach; Mr. Bob Statzer, head coach.

The school and community should be especially proud of its fine football team, which in its second year of participation, has produced a 5-3-1 record and has won a co-championship in District VI. This winning season was accomplished through hard work, a desire to win, lots of hussle, determination, and an understanding of the words "don't give up."

Coach Statzer said that he "considered it a pleasure, honor, and privilege to have worked with such a fine bunch of young men." He also said he was "proud to have been their coach and to have shared in the joy of their successful season."

"Girls aren't the only ones." Rugged football players keep in shape by exercising daily.

. . . in Advertisements . . .

Searching is a siren word beckoning all persons through myriad doors. Many of these doors swing wide to reveal the loyal merchants who are interested in the education of young people.

Students engage in shopping safaris, visiting the many stores and business places of our advertisers. Student feet tramping on cement sidewalks, as they scurry here, pausing there, admire the shining merchandise displayed in each window. The salespeople bring before the public the best products available.

The staff wishes to thank these interested and civic-minded businessmen whose unselfish interest in today's youth proves the confidence they have in the students of FCHS.

If it were not for the cooperation of these men and women, many of the activities at FCHS would not be possible. In fact, if it were not for these people publication of the 1964 BISON would not be possible.

A peek through these doors portray the people who led the way—who set the pace for tomorrow, and here is seen a possible answer to our puzzling search.

Is the unique theme to be found here, in the cooperation of our advertisers?

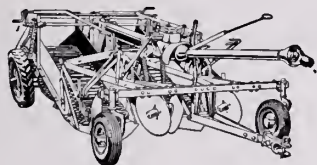

Congratulations

Searching is a siren word, beckoning all persons through myriad doors. The journey has led through each doorway that leads to a way of life at Floyd County High. The search disclosed many things that are important and essential for a successful year. Unfolded were the serious moods and the gala affairs reflected in boundless enthusiasm, the four phases of high school—the classes, the activities, the social events, and the athletics.

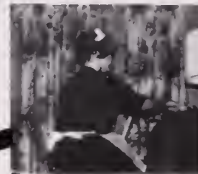

The salty smell of popcorn, the sparkling glare of tinsel, the velvety softness of newly fallen snow, the democratic sounds of a government class, the wonderful aroma of a warm lunch, the brisk cold of a football game, the warm "good morning" of a teacher, the chilly rattle of snow chains, the yellow mums of Homecoming, the gentle tap of a gavel, the melodious sound of choral voices, the clanging of a homeroom bell, the clank of a locker as it is hurriedly closed, the small explosion produced in a chemistry class, the sleep-walking scene in Macbeth, the feeling of pride when someone mentions our school—these things have lured FCHS students to open many latches, hoping that each would open and reveal to them the "heartbeat" for which they search.

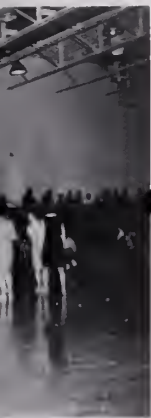

From the broad panorama of school life no single answer can be found. As they think back over what they've seen, over what they've ventured, an image emerges from the span of the search.

They look up and others see the happy gleam in their eyes—they've found an answer—they know all.

~~I did in your book.~~

Mrs. Gardner,

I can't begin to tell you how much I've enjoyed being in your class this year. It is really a pleasure to work with such a nice person.
Although I won't be taking Home Ec next year, I will still be in the J.H. Many happens always be yours.

Love,
Susan Moore

Mrs. Gardner,
I have enjoyed
very much being one of your students.
I hope that in your future teaching years
you can remember your 1964 senior class.
Always,
Linda
Hodges

Always,
Sharon

Mr. Gardner,
I have really enjoyed myself in your Home Ec class this year. I only hope that you will remember me as well
as you have me on my mind. Thanks you
a lovely you

Mr. Gardner
you are one of the best teachers I have ever had. And I have really enjoyed
being in your class this year. A student

have having you
 Mrs Gardner, especially as a Home Ec. teacher you are real sweet I have really heard a lot especially how to insert sleeves with gathers (don't)

Love,
 Mrs. J. Gardner

I can't begin to tell you how much I have enjoyed knowing you and working with you in the past years. I want to thank you for all your help these years. I really admire the time you've given so much of I couldn't do anything at all without it.
 I really will miss you next year, but I'll be sure and keep close to the future. That you always be blessed richly with love,
 Anna

Mrs. Gardner,

I have really enjoyed
 being in your class this year. It is a real pleasure to know such a wonderful person. (even if you do
 "trick" me into doing many things)

I am really looking forward to next year. I sincerely hope that I won't let you or the club down in any way. I'll do my best.

Thanks for the many things you have done for me this year. May happiness be your forever.

With love,

Judy Yearheart

Mrs. Gardner
 I have never before felt how much you have helped me until now I know now that with the help you have given me I can face
 the future with higher hopes.

Thanks a lot and may God bless you always
 Linda L.

Mrs. Gardner,
I certainly have enjoyed being in your class this year so much looking forward to seeing you next year. May happiness always be yours. With Love
Carolyn Groom

Mrs. Gardner,
I have enjoyed
having your class
the past four years.
Thank you for your excellent direction in J.H.A. I really enjoyed working with you.
May your life continue to be filled with happiness and success.
As Always,
Sandra Pugh

Mrs. Gardner,
I want to tell you how much I have enjoyed being in your class this year. I enjoyed all the other years but especially this year.
I hope to see you
after graduation.

Always,
Lillian Underwood

Mrs. Hardner
 I have enjoyed very much
 being in your class this year. I will miss being in your class next year.
 Best wishes and lots of luck in the future.
 a student,
 Bertha Martin

Mrs. Hardner,
 I will make it short and as sweet as I can so there won't be any lying. To tell the truth, I have surely enjoyed you for a Home Co. teacher. There isn't one teacher in a million that would give as you have given me. I thank you for helping and putting up with me. I have enjoyed it all the way.
 Best of luck to you in your near future of teaching.
 Love always
 Bertha Martin

Mrs. Gardner,

I have enjoyed
being in your class and hope to have you next year.

Mrs. Gardner,

It has been a pleasure
having you as my teacher.

I have my hopes up for you for the next teacher
next year.

Best wishes for the future, and thank you.

I can't express in words how much I have enjoyed your classes and have enjoyed knowing you. I really appreciate all the things you have done for me, I don't think I'll ever be able to thank you enough. Thanks for listening to my problems and for very often making me see that they weren't as bad as I thought. I've really enjoyed my work in Home Economics and F.H.A. The good times I had in them are the highlights of my high school life. I wish you the best in the years to come and I know your students will enjoy knowing you as much as I have. You are one of my favorite people and you always will be.
